

Saad Khan
Partner

Saad joined CMEA Capital in 2007 as a Partner and is focusing on the firm's software and Internet investments. Saad also leads our seed investment initiative. Currently, Saad sits on the board of directors for CMEA portfolio companies Blekko, Pixazza, Jobvite, and co-led CMEA's investment in Evolution Robotics. From prior affiliations, Saad also serves on the advisory board for Lending Club, and is a founding member of the FilmAngels.

Prior to joining CMEA, Saad was a Venture Partner and led the advisory services group at Garage Technology Ventures (GTV), a seed and early stage venture capital firm. During his career at Garage, Saad worked with many emerging technology, software, and digital media companies including TripleHop (acquired by ORCL), cFares, and Pandora.

Before GTV, Saad worked for IBM research's alphaWorks team and in Strategic Planning and Business Development for the Buena Vista Internet Group at the Walt Disney Company. Saad received a B.S. degree in Symbolic Systems and an A.B in Economics with Honors in Science, Technology, and Society from Stanford University. He is a Charter Member of TIE, and is an advisor to Stanford's Design School.
